

Stacey Winter-Davis
Technology Education Specialist
swinter18@gmail.com

Mission, Vision, and Core Values Statement

Mission

My ultimate goal is to be an educator within the school's Media Center, or what has traditionally been called the library. In that role, I will be both a media and technology specialist providing assistance to teachers and students. As a technology specialist or coach, I will be involved in collaborating with teachers to integrate technology into the classroom or lesson through a variety of web applications and tools. I will also be involved with instructing our students in digital citizenship and literacy.

Vision

I envision a Media Center that is a community hub. Students will visit to research, type, socialize, and maybe even get a cup of coffee. There will be a Makerspace accessible to students for projects and educational exploration. The Media Center will also be open to parents for special programs and resources as well as outside groups to meet outside of regular school hours.

Additionally, in my role of media and technology specialist, I see the potential for overseeing the inclusion of several school clubs. These potential clubs include: coding club, book club, AV club, and TV studio.

Lastly, as the technology specialist, I plan to be a resource for all teachers. In this capacity, I will be knowledgeable of a variety of educational tech tools and applications as well as which resources work best with student accommodation needs.

Core Values

A free, quality public education is a fundamental right that all children deserve. In order to build a successful society, our country needs to build successful people and that starts with its public schools. I choose to be an educator because I feel it is my duty to prepare the next generation.

In my role as an educator, it is my responsibility to create a safe environment that encourages inclusion, discovery, and openness. I expect a high level of achievement from my students and encourage them to expect the best from themselves. I value mutual respect and accountability. Lastly, by providing them with safety and the tools to learn, I also impart to them my hope and belief in them and for their future.